NEW PUBLICATIONS.

THE INTERNATIONAL MAGAZINE, for Jan., is embellished with a striking likeness of Koszuth, a sketch of his wife and children, and several other appropriate engravings. A portrait of R. H. Stoddard is a very "counterfeit presentment" of that favorite poet. The selections in this number comprise several of the most racy stories of the recent English monthlies, while among the original contributors, we find the names of George H. Boker, Alice Carey, Richard B Kimball, Erastus W. Eitsworth, and Alfred B. Street, besides the indefatigable Editor himself, whose gatherings and moralizings are marked by their usual abundance and unction. Nearly a page of his special department is devoted to a luminous criticism of a recent work on "Horse-breaking." It displays the equestrian tact of the writer to signal advantage. (Siringer & Townsend.)

" HARPERS' MAGAZINE," for Jan., opens with a Life of Benjamin Franklin, by Jacob Abbott, illustrated with a profusion of spirited en-gravings. "Napoleon Bonaparte," by John S. C. Abbott, is continued and fully sustains the interest of the preceding number. The selections have evidently been made with great nicety of choice, from the bewiltering variety of the English magazines, and almost every reader may find in them something to his taste. The different editorial departments have been attentively cared for, showing that nothing is spared on the part of the publishers to make "Rarpers' Magazine" worthy of the unrivaled patronage which it has received from the public.

The PHRENOLOGICAL JOURNAL," "THE WATER CURE JOURNAL," and "THE S. COENT," for January, are issued in the excellent style for which the publications of Fowlers & Wells are preverbial. They are well adapted to their respective purposes, and fully justify the popular favor in which they are held. "THE UNIVERSAL PHONOGRAPHER" is the title of a new monthly journal, published by Fowler & Wells, and edited by E. Webster. It is devoted to correspondence, phonographic intelligence, literary selections, and other matters interesting to the student of phonography. It intends to point out the best course of practice, both in writing and reading, for becoming familiar with the precepts of phonography, or recording language with the ra-pidity of speech.

A friendly correspondent sends us a poem commencing " Long live Kossuth, the great, celebrious here!" the publication of which we are compelled to decline.

THE FRENCH ELECTION .- The London Gazette has a telegraphic dispatch from Paris. dated at 9 A. M., Tuesday, Dec. 23, which gives the following as the definite result of the elections in the Departments of the Seine:

The President remains determined on proposing the abolition of the octroi duties, for it is found that a moderate income tax or retrenchment in some of the offices would make up the deficiency. It is also ordered to make some experiments in diminishing ordered to make some experiments in diminishing the protective system. It is not true that the President is about to publish a decree of the Provisional Government, abolishing all titles of nobility. It is thought quite sufficient for the Republic putting an end to the conferring of titles without medding with se that had been conferred.

NEW-YEAR DAY AT THE COLORED OR-PHAN ASYLUM -A correspondent sends us the following:

PHAN ASYLUM—A correspondent sends us the following:

"We were delighted on Thursday upon a visit to the Colored Orphan Asylum, situated, as is perhaps generally known, on the Fifth-avenue, between Forty-third and Porty-fourth-streets. We happened in about the children's dinner hour, and we found them partaking of a rich and excellent dinner. There were about two hundred children, dressed cleanly and neatly, assembled in the dining hall, and their plump and healthy appearance gave evidence that it is not only on holidays that they fare well.—After dinner the children were assembled in one of the school rooms, and every little gir received from some of the managers who were present, a handsomely dressed doll, which seemed to delight them very much, and each boy received a toy adapted, as well as could be, to his age. From here they were marched into another room, and through the kindness of Mr. Young were shown a very interesting and instructive exhibition of dissolving views, &c.—This was a rich treat for them. In the evening the larger children were regaled with an oyster supper, a donation from a friend. This was served up with all the honers due to she occasion, and the children were greatly pleased with it. We do not believe that there could have been found on New-Year day any set of children who saw more real comfort and happiness than did these Colored Orphans, and while we looked upon them we could not but hift our hearts to the Giver of all Good, and thank Him that He had blessed them with so good a home. We would only add that a visit to this institution. hit our hearts to the Giver of all Good, and thank Him that He had blessed them with so good a home We would only add that a visit to this institution would amply repay any one for his trouble, and all the same time would fill him with a realizing view of the blessings of Benevolence. Hoserrat.—The unknown man who, on the night of the 23d ult, was taken to the N Y. Hospital by two policemen, and there left without explanation, died on Friday night. Ald, Conckim, on Sunday, held an inquest upon the body, when the testimony of Dr. Chas. M. Allen, Resident Surgeon at the Hospital, was taken, and went to show, that, on making a post mortem examination of the body, he found a wound, 3 inches in length, on the head, which wound bore the appearance of having been produced by considerable force, and evidently with a blunt weapon. The Doctor further stated that the deceased, from the time of his admission to the institution, was insensible; and further, that after the first publication of the matter in the newspapers, Officer Darling, of the Third Ward, called upon him, and informed him that he was one of the individuals who conveyed the man to the Hospital, and that he did so by request of one of the Conductors of the New-York and Erie Railroad, who placed the deceased in his charge at the Ferry-house of the Company. It was also in guidence, that a letter had been received by the Superintendent of the Hospital, from Mr. Jacob Sloat, of Sloatsburg, which stated that, on the night of Dec. 22, an unknown man was found lying beside the track at that place with a wound on his head and insensible, and that he was supposed to have fallen from a fireight train going east. The American Flag of Dec. 10, a new paper published at Brownsville, gives the following particulars of Caravajal's defeat.

The steamer Camanche arrived here late Monday night, bringing accounts of the recent battle at Cerralyo, between the forces of Caravajal and those of Gen. Jauregui. It appears that Jauregui had 230 men and two pieces of artillery, while the force under Caravajal amounted to 330 men, without cannos. Caravajal charged the guns of Jauregui, and succeeded in driving him from his postion, capturing much of the ammunition and many horse, saddles, wagons, and small arms belonging to Jauregui's camp; but failed in securing the large guns. Gen. Jauregui took shelier in a large stone nouse near the edge of the town, with his cannon. There he held them at buy for two days, using small stones instead of shot, with his large guns.

At this junction Caravajal received information of the near approach of a large detachment of General Uraga's force, and he at once broke up and commenced a precipitate retreat. We are informed that his forces became much scattered in their stampede, but the most of them, with their leader, reached Guerrero, and immediately crossed over the Rio Grande, thus putting that river between them and harm. They are thus driven out of Mexican territory, and have found a refuge on American soil.

All accounts agree that the late battle at Cerralvo was a very severe one—that Gen. Jauregui's mon fought with as much determination and valor as could be expected from any people, fighting for their homes and their country's honor. The little band under Caravajal charged the shotted guns of their opponents with the bravery and perseverance characteristic of veterans, and in a good cause would have deserved, as it would most hkely have secured, success.

have deserved, as it would most likely have secured, success.

We believe this abortive and ill advised attempt at a revolution well nigh ended. [Unless large reenforcements are speedily received from Texas, nothing can help them. The accounts from Capt. Ford were not encouraging to the hopes of the invading forces. He was shout leaving San Antonio for Austin, to try what might be effected in that quarter. We are happy in receiving the assurance that Capt. Lewis will have nothing to do with the affair. As we can see nothing desirable to be effected in so hopeless a struggle, we since rely trust it will proceed no further.
